Animal Park

My name is Dr Carla Conran and, together with my husband, I first opened Animal Park, a special park for chimpanzees, 30 years ago. There are now over 60 of these animals here. People bring chimpanzees to us which need looking after – they are sometimes ill or not wanted by a zoo or are too difficult to keep as pets.

Chimpanzees are very intelligent and they can understand what other chimpanzees, and also people, are feeling. They are very good with their hands and they often use bits of wood to get insects out of trees to eat. The chimpanzees enjoy eating many different kinds of things. It is important to keep the chimpanzees interested, so the staff put their food in different places every day so they have to find it. The staff also play lots of games with them.

The chimpanzees in our park live in groups of about ten and they become good friends with the others in their group. One group is called Sally's group. Sally likes adventure. Most chimpanzees don't like getting wet but Sally loves it and goes into the pool to swim in the summer.
